

Acronis Maintenance & Priority Support

If your organization has multiple computers or servers, you already know the benefits of standardizing your operating systems—repair and maintenance problems are reduced, upgrades are simplified, and management and support are streamlined. Yet keeping all of those systems upgraded with the latest technology can be a costly, time consuming undertaking.

Organizations using Acronis software solutions can now receive all major upgrades at a reduced price. Acronis Maintenance & Priority Support (AMPS) subscriptions enable organizations to subscribe to software upgrades rather than purchasing them outright, saving both time and money with one easy payment that covers a one -year period. The program reduces administrative overhead and distribution costs, the one-time fee simplifies budget management, and the more licenses you purchase, the greater your savings.

AMPS is a yearly subscription program for major software upgrades and priority support services. Not only does this provide a lower total cost of ownership, but you receive all the benefits of using the most innovative technology available, and all of your computers are standardized with the latest software. AMPS is an ideal way to manage your organization's software investment while at the same time benefiting from all of the software's advances and improvements. There is no better way to protect your software investment.

You can enroll in the Acronis Maintenance & Priority Support program directly through Acronis or through an authorized Acronis reseller.
